NOTES

The steep mountainsides of Colorado have long been home to a prehistoric creature that feeds on tourists dressed in obnoxious colors. The Slide Rock Bolter is an enormous fishlike rock creature that lies in wait on slopes of 45° or steeper—perfectly camouflaged to the surrounding rock formations. When an unsuspecting tourist or party of teenagers passes below, the Bolter slides down the side of the mountain with its mouth open, devouring anything in its path. If encountered, it's already too late.
